Coronavirus concerns

Now that the advice on how to deal with any potential spread of the Coronavirus (COVID-19) appears to have become more consistent, We felt it pertinent to write to you to offer some assurances around the advice we may need to follow, should there be any issue in the school.

The Department for Education has regularly provided us with updates from Public Health England, which advises schools and parents on what they should do if staff, students or pupils have travelled to an area that is designated as having a risk of contagion from the Coronavirus strain, COVID-19.

As a school we fully support these messages, and we also suggest that, because the situation is changing daily, you may wish to check the Public Health England website to ascertain the latest advice on:

<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/guidance-to-educational-settings-about-covid-19/guidance-to-educational-settings-about-covid-19>

We shall continue to apply all common sense approaches to dealing with any potential virus that schools could face at this time of year through general good hygiene practises, and this will also be happening, of course, in homes and other places of work.

Please be assured that we will continue to regularly monitor the advice that is being given and will contact you further should the need arise.

As always, thank you in anticipation of your ongoing support.

S Laws & J O'Callaghan
Co-Headteachers
